Olivia ist, wie man selbst von hinten unschwer erkennen kann, ein überaus reizendes Geschöpf und vielseitig begabt. Singen, tanzen oder Bilder malen, Kopf stehen, Seilspringen oder Sandburgen bauen - für Olivia ist das alles kein Problem. Sie kann sich ja sogar schon allein die Zähne putzen. Was Olivia sonst noch kann? Ihrer Mama auf die Nerven gehen. Das kann sie sogar fast am besten. Morgens zum Beispiel, wenn sie nicht weiß, was sie anziehen soll, und ein Kleidungsstück nach dem anderen anprobiert. Ihre Mama hat sie aber trotzdem lieb. Sehr sogar. Scott Foresman-Addison Wesley Mathematics (©2004) components for Grade 6. This book argues that it is the incorporation of a multicultural agenda into basal readers, the primary tool for teaching reading in elementary schools, that has stunted American children's ability to read. The book shows how basal readers have been systematically "dumbed down" in an effort to raise minority students' "self esteem." It contends that while elementary readers of the past featured excerpts from classic stories such as "Arabian Nights" and "Robinson Crusoe," with a complex vocabulary and sentence structure able to challenge the imagination and build reading skills, today's basal readers present students with politically and ethnically correct stories whose language is virtually foreign and unable to engage students. According to the book, drawing words from Swahili, Spanglish, and other "trendy" dialects to teach students with a shrinking English vocabulary is a symptom of this intellectual and cultural disorder. The book showcases interviews with teachers, gives an in-depth analysis of reading texts over the past 30 years, and talks about how pressure groups have affected educational publishers. It points out that literacy--cultural and verbal--gives all students, but particularly those from poor or minority backgrounds, personal independence and achievement and the ability to participate fully in civic life. Each of the 11 chapters includes notes. (NKA) Scott Foresman-Addison Wesley Mathematics ((c)2005) components for Grade 6. Scott Foresman Reading (2004) components for Grade 6. It is difficult to overstate the importance of personal consumption both to individual consumers and to the economy. While consumer&, are recognized as valuing market goods and services for the activities they can construct from them in the frameworks of several disciplines, consequences of the characteristics of goods and services they use in these activities have not been well studied. In the discourse to follow, I will contrast knowledge-yielding and conventional goods and services as factors in the construction of activities that consumers engage in when they are not in the workplace. Consumers will be seen as deciding on non-work activities and the inputs to these activities according to their objectives, and the values and cumulated skills they hold. I will suggest that knowledge content in these activities can be efficient for consumer objectives and also have important externalities through its effect on productivity at work and economic growth. The exposition will seek to elaborate these points and contribute to multi-disciplinary dialogue on consumption. It takes as its starting point the contention that consumption is simultaneously an economic and social psychological process and that integration of content can contribute to explanation.
